

THE ROYAL LIVERPOOL GOLF CLUB.

SOME THUMB-NAIL IMPRESSIONS—BY FRED MAY

This distinguished club, from some of the members of which our artist was greatly privileged in obtaining a few sittings, has its course at a place called Hoylake, which is more rather than less well known amongst those "wha rin aboot efter a wee bit ba" carrying at the same time a "bag o' sticks." To particularise in a case where all are illustrious would be very invidious, but it may be mentioned that Mr. Allan Graham—last on the right at bottom—was a finalist in the Amateur Golf Championship a few years ago
