

THE FOURSOMES: A. A. Duncan studying the line before putting on the Cop green. The hollow in the foreground gathers many shots which are a shade too strong and is very difficult to negotiate

The UNIVERSITY

A Record Win for Cambridge at Hoylake—The

[We draw the attention of our readers to our new Golf

CAMBRIDGE beat Oxford crushingly over the links of the Royal Liverpool Club at Hoylake last week by 12 matches to 3 on the two days' play. As Oxford also lost the "Dinner Match" which preceded the event, and so had to entertain their conquerors after the battle was done, they had rather a thin time of it. Cambridge laid the foundations of their success in the foursomes, in which they turned a seemingly losing position at luncheon into a triumph

THE HILBRE: One of the greatest holes on these classic links. There is a steep slope from left to right. A. A. Duncan has just putted

FOUR OF THE LADS: (Left to right) E. M. Perry Knox-Gore, R. C. Robertson-Glasgow, J. Dalmeyer, and Captain Monty Ravenhill at the "Bystander" £500 trophy meeting at Felixstowe. One suspects "Crusoe" of having cracked one of his quips

On left: "BYSTANDER" FINALISTS: S. H. R. Hornby (left) going out with Leonard Crawley, who is regarded as about the best of our amateur golfers at present. Hornby received two strokes and won on the 16th green. The competition for the "Bystander" £500 trophy took place at Felixstowe